1000 projects . . . and 1000s yet to come.

Earlier this summer, Engineering Ministries International sent out its 1000th project trip worldwide. Within hours, eMi UK had sent a team to Thailand, eMi US had sent a team to Sierra Leone, and eMi Canada had sent a team to Tanzania.

These projects are exemplary of the best of the past and future of eMi: multi-national design teams empowering local ministries to demonstrate the love of Christ for the least of society.

What does it mean for a ministry to have a design team come alongside them?

"It is such a life-changing event when people come and use their skills like your team has done . . . Your gifts have truly lifted us as a community"

The coming of eMi has added much value to us, to what we are doing and to the kingdom of God"

"Blinking back the tears of gratitude, I can only say Praise God for you and your team."

These words of thanks from eMi Canada client ministries throughout the years confirm that what we are doing is meeting a need for ministries . . . and a need in the Kingdom of God.

In Tanzania, the need was for a new orphanage building for the Upendo Orphanage. Land had been purchased, but the ministry was unsure of the next steps of vision and design.

The staff and the ministry were thrilled to have the eMi team lead them in determining the details of the God-given vision. They are now able to use the plans eMi provided to start construction on the new building – and to demonstrate the love of Christ to the fifty children who will call this orphanage home.

That's the impact of one project in one thousand. Are you ready to be a part of the next 1000 projects? You can join us on an upcoming project trip, sponsor a project, or pray for our work around the world.
